FAITH GIBSON HUBBARD:

ROOTED IN OUR COMMUNITY.

Faith Gibson Hubbard is an advocate, educator, wife, mother, and public servant with a deep history of service to our city.

Faith was born to a young single mother, who taught her the power of community. With her community and advocacy roots, Faith pursued a career serving others. She was the first executive director of Thrive By Five DC, first Chief Student Advocate and served as the Interim Ombudsman for Public Education, as well as a member of the DC Public Library Board of Trustees and Regional Board of Directors for Reading Partners DC. Most recently, she led the Mayor's Office of Community Affairs, which is made up of 13 different government offices that serve as the link between the community and government agencies across all 8 wards. Now, raising her own family in Ward 5, Faith shares our priorities and has the community-first agenda and real experience to deliver for us on the DC council.

FAITH'S COMMUNITY-FIRST AGENDA

- Prioritize quality, affordable housing so that all residents can afford to call our community home.
- Ensure a high-quality public education and provide our students and teachers the resources they need to succeed.
- Expand multimodal transportation options, including improving public transit and traffic safety measures, to connect our communities and keep neighbors safe.
- Address the root causes of crime and invest in holistic approaches to public safety.
